Observations

The risk landscape for Dyfed-Powys is characterised by a consistent level of risk across a range of public order, fraud, asset crime, and violence-related risks. Risk scores for the top 10 identified risks all stand at 3.0 out of 10, indicating a moderate likelihood of occurrence based on demographic and environmental factors. These scores reflect an objective assessment of potential threats rather than incident volumes, providing insight into where policing resources might be focused to mitigate harm and protect life. Notably, there has been no change in the risk scores compared to last month, suggesting a stable risk environment without emerging spikes or reductions in threat levels.~~Public order risks dominate the top positions, with 'Public Order - Drug Usage' ranked highest, followed closely by two types of fraud: 'Voucher Fraud' and 'Returns Fraud'. The prominence of these risks may be influenced by local socio-economic factors and the rural-urban mix in Dyfed-Powys, where access to services and economic vulnerabilities can affect drug use and fraud opportunities. Asset crime risks such as 'Theft of Vehicle' and 'Arson' also feature, highlighting ongoing concerns around property-related offences. The inclusion of 'Trespassing - Squatting' reflects challenges linked to housing and property occupancy in the region.~~Violence and abuse risks, including 'Verbal Abuse' and 'Physical Assault', are ranked lower but remain significant given their potential threat to life and community safety. The absence of upward or downward trends across all risks suggests a steady state, which may be indicative of effective local interventions or a lack of new pressures altering the risk profile. Overall, Dyfed-Powys presents a balanced but persistent risk environment, with public order and fraud-related risks requiring continued attention due to their potential impact on community wellbeing.
